

Ngage New Mexico is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization with the mission – to serve as a catalyst to advance the well-being of the people of Southern New Mexico. We are currently working on a “cradle to career” education initiative using a Collective Impact approach.

Ngage New Mexico (Ngage) periodically seeks undergraduate and/or graduate student interns to assist with its current initiatives.

Student Interns join the Ngage team and assist in a variety of ways. For example, Intern responsibilities include assisting Ngage personnel with workshops and developing power point presentations. In the past, Interns have engaged in grant research and writing, drafting articles, data management and assisting with strategic planning.

As an Intern at Ngage, interns become part of the staff and are invited to attend meetings with staff and community leaders. Interns will learn the basics in grant writing, strategic planning and nonprofit administration.
